INTRODUCTION

About Jubilee Scotland

Jubilee Scotland was founded by a broad movement of campaigners, faith groups and civil society organisations to continue the work of the Jubilee 2000 coalition in Scotland in calling for the cancellation of unjust and unpayable global debt. We work in solidarity with partners in Scotland, and as part of an international movement, for the cancellation of all unpayable and unjust sovereign debts, and for the establishment of a fair and transparent process by which such debts will be prevented from accumulating again in the future.

About this Charter

What is the Jubilee Scotland Charter?

The Jubilee Scotland Charter is a simple, accessible document that outlines what Jubilee Scotland is and what it does.

Why do we have a Charter?

The Charter exists to inform, guide and focus:

- the decision-making of the Campaign Coordinating Group (CCG) and its sub-groups;
- the work of staff and volunteers;
- the participation of our campaigners, members and partners.

How is the Charter reviewed?

Jubilee Scotland's CCG will review and revise this Charter on an annual basis or as required to ensure it continues to represent and guide the organisation accurately and effectively.

PART ONE - MISSION

Our vision (what we want to see)

Jubilee Scotland wants to see millions of people lift themselves out of poverty as more governments in developing countries stop paying back unjust and unpayable debts and invest more in citizen-determined needs, such as health, education and livelihoods.

The challenge and the opportunity

The life chances of hundreds of millions of people are being reduced by the burden of unjust debt.¹ Sustained international campaigning is required to challenge these debts if other efforts to reduce poverty, inequality and conflict are to be effective. Fortunately, politicians, companies and institutions based in or linked to Scotland can influence and change the situation, and thousands of people in Scotland have shown that they care about this issue by joining effective campaigns designed by Jubilee Scotland and its partners.

What we are doing about it

Jubilee Scotland inspires and equips people to take action against unjust debts and debt systems that contribute to global poverty, inequality and conflict.

Our values

Jubilee Scotland has three key value sets that underpin how we operate, campaign and partner with others.

We seek to be:

- Legitimate. We will convey information, make decisions and promote action based on the most reliable and current sources of evidence-based information.
- Effective. We will be strategic, principled, dynamic and collaborative in our campaigning. We will see our role in the context of an international movement, and work with clear definitions of short and long-term success.
- Accessible. We will communicate with our audiences in clear, consistent, engaging and wherever possible positive language. We will report campaign successes and personal stories alongside the challenges we identify to inspire and involve the widest range of stakeholders. All our work will be governed by a robust Equal Opportunities Policy.

Our guiding principles

Operationally, our activities, campaigns and governance are guided by the following positions.

(i) How we define unjust and unpayable debt

Jubilee Scotland defines debts as 'unjust' on a case-by-case basis by drawing on research with and from our partners (see below). Unjust loans include those:

- made to dictators and unelected regimes
- relating to weaponry or environmentally unsound projects
- made to countries that could evidently not afford to repay them
- made without transparent scrutiny by the debtor country, including civil society.
- associated with conditionalities that compromise the borrower country's sovereignty

We define as 'unpayable' those debts which cannot be repaid without grievously impairing a country's ability to afford its key priorities, such as health, welfare and education.

(ii) Who we work with to define and monitor unjust debt

¹ See our guiding principles below for our definition of unjust and unpayable debt.

We stay informed about the impact of debt and its cancellation on three levels:

- Through continuous discussion with other international agencies and networks working on debt including Jubilee Debt Campaign, the European Network on Debt and Development (EURODAD), Jubilee South, the Bretton Woods Project and the African Forum and Network on Debt and Development (AFRODAD).
- Through these networks, we develop and maintain direct relationships with NGOs working on the ground in developing countries monitoring government finance, new loans and the impacts of debt repayment. We occasionally host campaigners in Scotland from these NGOs to inform and inspire our audiences directly.
- We check and strengthen this information through our relationships with and awareness of the work of our Scottish member organisations as they relate to a range of relevant issues.²

We also input into the work of these organisations, to advance awareness of the opportunities for influence in the UK and in Scotland particularly.

(iii) How we relate to those affected by debt

- Solidarity. Our relation to the unjust debts shouldered by developing countries is not a charitable one. It reflects a deficit of accountability in the financial systems of developed countries, which affects us all.
- Partnership. In addressing these challenges, we have as much to learn as we do to offer to those affected by debt. We campaign as partners of citizens, NGOs and agencies affected by and working on debt at all levels.

(iv) How we measure success

We will measure and report successes to our audiences with reference to the outcomes identified in specific campaigns and by our general Theory of Change (see supporting document). Our successes include those achieved with our members through our work in Scotland, and by the international movement of which we are a part. In 2012-13 we will establish and develop the resources of a Campaign Monitoring Group which will ensure even greater consistency and robustness of evaluation and motivational reporting.

(v) How we are funded

We will not enter into partnerships with organisations that might compromise our independence, or accept funding or content from political parties or organisations with a persistent record of undermining economic development, civil society, human rights, environmental sustainability or peace. We manage our finances ethically and transparently.

² See Part Three for more information on membership.

PART TWO – AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

Our cross-cutting aims

The four aims which currently direct our work are:

- To strengthen and broaden the debt justice movement in Scotland.
- To catalyse and encourage effective action on unjust debt by Scottish institutions, particularly the Scottish Government and Parliament.
- To add value to other debt campaigns operating in the UK and internationally.
- To support and build the capacity of our members to help us achieve these aims.

Our audiences

To be effective with our resources we must firstly nurture and support leaders who can build our movement and pressure target groups, and secondly identify target groups and individuals whose actions on any given campaign will finally determine our success. We have (and seek) friends from all parts of society.

- Leaders in our movement come from a range of backgrounds but particularly from our membership, which includes faith groups, charities, cooperatives, unions and other civil society organisations. We must also spend time identifying and nurturing supportive politicians, academics and business leaders; and developing the capacity of our membership as a whole.
- Target groups will typically include politicians, civil servants, financial and legal institutions and the media, at both Scottish and UK levels.

Our core activities

- Monitoring developments in international debt and keeping our member organisations apprised of these.
- Working with partners to develop effective strategies to bring an end to unjust and unpayable debt.
- Networking with other debt campaigns in the international debt movement to ensure our campaigns are as relevant and effective as possible.
- Producing clear and well-informed briefings to enable decision-makers to take effective action on debt.
- Convening events, conferences and meetings to build the debt-cancellation movement in Scotland.
- Maintaining newsletters, electronic and social media to build and strengthen the debt movement in Scotland.
- Working with members to creatively market our key policies and campaign-asks.

PART THREE - STRUCTURE

Overview

Jubilee Scotland is a Scottish Registered Charity [SC031827] and a Company Limited by Guarantee [SC220549]. The organisational structure is described by the diagram below:

Member organisations

Our members are absolutely essential to our day to day effectiveness. Member organisations:

- provide core funding for our work through annual subscription and larger project grants
- champion, make use of and share our research and campaigns among their networks;
- are aware of and report back to us about their own audiences’ involvement with debt issues;
- encourage their audiences to have a say in what we do;
- nominate directors to the CCG.

Our membership includes local authorities, faith groups, international and environmental development charities, other peace and justice organisations and trade unions. To find out how your organization can become a member and what we provide in return, see page 10.

Campaign Coordinating Group (CCG)

The CCG is made up of directors who have first been sponsored by member organisations and then elected at an Annual General Meeting; or co-optees who have been co-opted by a vote of existing CCG members. Directorship nominations and co-options can include non-affiliated individuals. All CCG members are committed to advancing the constitutional purposes of the charity independent of their own affiliations. The CCG meets at least four times a year to:

- ensure that the constitutional purposes and resources of the charity are well met, as operationally reflected by this Charter (updating it if required);
- appoint and mandate sub-groups (including the Campaign Strategy Group, Risk Group, Monitoring and Communications Group and Office Bearers Group)
- celebrate, learn from and/or probe the evidence of impact reported by staff and others.

Subgroups

Appointed by the Campaign Coordinating Group, these groups conduct the key work of the organisation. They include:

The Campaign Working Group: who meet annually to develop Jubilee Scotland's current campaign

The Office Bearers Group: who include the Convener, Vice-convener, Secretary and Treasurer and who conduct the work of the CCG between meetings

The Risk Group: who meet annually to identify the key risks facing the organization

The Monitoring and Communications Group: who meet at least once a year

Staff

The work of Jubilee Scotland is currently supported on a day-to-day level by 3 part-time staff - a Campaign Director, an Outreach Officer and a Research and Policy Assistant - plus a paid intern. All staff are recruited and retained in accordance with our Equal Opportunities Policy and current legislation.

Individual campaigners

Our campaigns are energised by the commitment, creativity, lobbying and encouragement of countless individuals, both within and beyond the membership. See also 'Audiences', page 6. To find out how individuals can get more involved with our campaigns or if you belong to a group who might like to become a Member, see page 10.

APPENDICES

Our track record

Since 2001 Jubilee Scotland has campaigned with partners to win:

- the cancellation of the multilateral debts of the 40 Highly Indebted Poor Countries
- the UK government challenging the harmful policy conditionalities attached by the World Bank to its debt relief
- the cancellation of Haiti's outstanding debt
- the outlawing of Vulture Funds in the UK
- pro-poor investment of the IMF's gold sale proceeds
- an increase in transparency of UK Export Finance
- the UK government channeling climate adaptation funds to the United Nations

We have also:

- mobilised as part of wide civil society protests, including the G8 in Genoa, the World Social Forum, and the G20 in St Andrews, to maintain pressure on unaccountable global powers and frame debt as an issue of justice rather than charity
- built strong links between campaigners in Scotland and overseas, through arranging focused and effective speaker tours, including speakers from Mali, Malawi, Indonesia and the Philippines
- contributed through our schools outreach program to the development education of hundreds of pupils throughout Scotland
- held an unprecedented People's Debt Tribunal in the Scottish parliament, which enabled an unjust debt to be subject to democratic scrutiny and decision
- developed rules - approved by the Scottish Government - whereby indebted countries can seek arbitration in Scotland.

More information on these achievements, our programming and evaluation to date can be found in our latest Annual Report available at www.jubileescotland.org.uk/aboutus
